MONSTER PARADE STOPS ESKS —SOMETHING ALS COULDN'T DO

EDMONTON (BUP) — The Grey Cup champions, Edmonton Eskimos, came home Monday and more than 100,000 screaming, cheering fans completely mobbed the team as they paraded in open convertibles down Jasper Avenue.

The milling throngs did the job the Montreal Alouettes could not do — they completely halted the Grey Cup champions.

Thousands of fans swarmed over the cars carrying their heroes, and halted the parade time after time, as city and RCMP officers attempted to hold back the jubilant fans.

The parade moved off from Jasper Avenue and 116th Street at 2:30 p.m. led by the Edmonton School Boys Band.

Federal officials followed in the first cars, then Miss Edmonton Eskimo, also Miss Grey Cup — Barbara Beddome, rode behind the band in a flaming red convertible and proudly waved the prized trophy, the Grey Cup to the cheering throngs.

As the parade wended its way through the thunderous crowd, jet planes from the RCAF Station Edmonton roared overhead and dipped their wings in a salute to the champions.

With the temperature at below zero and brisk winds blowing, Edmonton fans started to line the parade route an hour before it started.

Tons of ticker tape and confetti showered down from office windows.

Cheer-leaders from Edmonton schools carried banners heralding the champions and as the cars with the players approached, the crowds broke the police lines and clamored over the cars seeking autographs, clapping the players on the back and shaking hands.

Earlier at the airport the champions couldn't find a hole to plunge through the 500 heavily-clothed fans who swarmed outside.

Neither could four buffalo-coated policemen who were out to escort them. Said one: "We tried."

The supporters sang "The old Grey Cup is back where she ought to be" as they ran out on the field to escort the plane in.

The pilot stopped the churning propellers before the crowd got to the plane and a tractor towed the four-engine aircraft to the tarmac.

About 30 cheer leaders hugged everyone in sight. "It helps keep warm," one shouted.

A great cheer burst from the crowd as the team led by line-backer Ted Tully, walked down the ramp, followed by club president Moe Lieberman and manager Al Anderson.

End Frankie Anderson carried a bundle that went almost unnoticed in the crowd. It was the cup.

Halfback Rollie Miles was carried on fans' shoulders to his waiting wife and three of his five children, while cheer leaders hugged grinning fullback Normie Kwong. Halfback Johnny Bright got a big ovation.

In Montreal, the Alouettes, returned to receive a rousing reception from their home fans.

A chartered plane carrying two of the Montreal players had barely touched the tarmac at nearby Dorval airport when a resounding cheer was let loose by fans cramming the waiting room.

Meanwhile, Vancouver, Grey Cup city, for four days a town with a scream in its throat and a pennant in its hand, got back to normal.

The chairs and carpets are back in the hotel lobbies — and the old regulars are back in the chairs.

Hotel Vancouver removed the barricades from the ornamental lighting. With beer stains, a broken glass door and shattered drinking glasses, manager Marc Burns estimated damage at $500 "no more than we expected".

FORT SASKATCHEWAN — A coroner's jury has ruled that jail guards were not negligent when Wilhelm Sherman, accused of the murder of his wife, committed suicide in the Fort Saskatchewan provincial jail.

Sherman, a 35-year-old carpenter, was arrested and remanded to the jail after police found the body of his 28-year-old wife, Alma, in their Edmonton home. She had been shot.

Six witnesses testified at an inquest into Sherman's death Friday. Following the instructions of Dr. M. M. Cantor, chief provincial coroner, the jury returned a verdict that said in part "... there is no evidence to suggest he was insane or exhibited suicidal tendencies requiring special confinement or special guards. British Director To Discuss Annual International Arts Festival For City

Discussions on the possibility of holding an annual International Festival of Arts in Canada have been taking place in Edmonton and other centres in Canada with Mr. Ian Hunter, formerly artistic director of the Edinburgh Festival and now managing director of a firm of impresarios in London, England.

Mr. Hunter, who visited Edmonton with his wife, is on a month's tour across the country to talk with various groups regarding the inauguration of such a scheme.

He said that Mr. Vincent Massey, the Governor General, had suggested to him the feasibility of such a festival while on a visit to London, and His Excellency is now honorary chairman of a committee which has been formed in Ottawa to explore the project.

At a meeting at the University of Alberta, presided over by Dr. W. H. Johns, Dean of Arts and Science, to discuss the merits of such a scheme, the majority of the groups were in favor of Ottawa as the headquarters for such a festival. As Dean Johns pointed out, it is Canada's capital and it is also the best and most natural meeting ground for both English and French speaking Canadians.

Mr. Hunter emphasized that an international festival of the arts, to include opera, ballet, drama and acting, held in Canada, would add a very great deal to focus the attention of the world on what Canada is doing for the arts and to promote the artistic life of Canada as a whole. He pointed out that a great number of press representatives would come from all over the world to see the Festival and naturally they would be bound to see and report other Canadian activities. It would also be a good stimulus to trade. In Edinburgh, visitors average 100,000 each season during the three week period of the festival there.

Mr. Hunter, too, was in favor of Ottawa as the centre for such an international organization. He also discussed the possibility of an international group of actors from the Festival touring the rest of Canada. Alternatively, he said, the best possible Canadian group of actors might be chosen to form a theatrical touring company to travel throughout Canada. This would work up interest in the Festival and also improve the standards of the company so that it could take a prominent part in the Festival.

Mr. Hunter added that he hoped to return to Canada in the near future when he hoped that plans to inaugurate the Festival might be completed.

Two Killed In Traffic Accidents

EDMONTON — Traffic accidents have claimed the lives of two pedestrians here.

Five-year-old Shelia Paulette Popyk was killed when she was struck by a truck and Miss Marjory Hickman, 47, died in hospital from injuries suffered when hit by a car, Oct. 26.

The Popyk child was struck by a half-ton truck, police said was driven by William David Rodgers of Edmonton. The accident occurred just outside the city limits about a block from the child's home.

An inquest has been ordered into the death of Miss Hickman, who died three weeks after being struck by a car.

Honor Three Outstanding Citizens

EDMONTON (BUP) — Three Edmontonians were honored for their civic leadership by the Brotherhood of Beth Shalom at a luncheon held recently in Edmonton's Glengarry Club.

Rabbi Dr. Louis Sacks paid tribute to Alderman Abe Miller, Dr. John Dower and M. I. Lieberman for their contribution to the community.

Mr. Miller, a prominent city lawyer, recently was returned to Edmonton city council as an alderman and is also a member of the provincial legislative assembly.

Dr. Dower, presently serving on the Macdonald Royal Commission, has served as an executive or member of at least 13 Edmonton provincial or national organizations in recent years. He is president of a large city wholesale firm.

Mr. Lieberman, also a prominent city lawyer, is a longtime gridiron enthusiast and president of the Edmonton Eskimo football organization.

Even Calgary Is Happy

The historic victory of the Edmonton Eskimos over the Montreal Alouettes, we understand, even made traditionally rival Calgary happy over Edmonton's good fortune. In fact, the winning by Edmonton of the Grey Cup for the second year in a row made history in several respects.

It's the first time the Grey Cup game was played out of Toronto city. It's the first time a western team has won it twice in a row. Another thing, it played to the biggest crowd since its inception in 1909, to a total of 39,400.

It was, of course, the first Grey Cup game in Vancouver's huge Empire Stadium. Thousands of Alberta fans made the trip by car, by plane and by train. We estimate that the majority of the other million were glued to their radio sets Saturday afternoon and thousands more saw it on television in and near Edmonton early Sunday morning (the film was received by air in Edmonton just after midnight) and later Sunday afternoon.

Another first. Ontario TV audiences saw the Grey Cup as a "live" broadcast transmitted over the micro-wave line via the United States.

Now, we wish the Canadian Champs—the Edmonton Eskimos—could meet the winners of the Army-Navy game somewhere in the United States. Wonder why not?

Trying To End the Winter Slump

The National Employment Service is a valuable servant of the Canadian people. Together with the Unemployment Insurance Commission it aids workers in finding jobs and when they are laid off provides them with weekly payments to ward off the spectre of personal financial ruin through unemployment.

Recently the service came up with a good idea that very few people have heard about. We have such a cold winter climate we more or less take it for granted that all construction work just automatically has to close down at the first approach of winter. But the new idea is that we don't have to have thousands of able construction workers out of work in Canada.

There are many ways that we can provide for continued employment throughout the winter. Initial outside work can be speeded up in the fall to accommodate workers on inside work during the winter. Building frame-works can be closed in with plywood to enable workmen to keep busy in a warm enclosure safe from sub-zero winds.

Why Plant Weeds?

Alberta farmers plant 12 million acres of cereal crops each year and this requires 18 million bushels of seed grain, says Robert L. Pharis, Supervisor of Alberta's Field Crop Improvement Service.

Surveys of grain planted in the spring of 1955 indicated at least six million bushels were of inferior quality. These would have been rejected for seed according to the grades of the Canada Seed Act.

The average weed seed content of rejected grain sown in 1955 was 60 wild oats and 64 wild buckwheat per pound. In addition seed of stinkweed, mustard, Russian pigweed, hemp nettle and others, were present.

The cost of cleaning this weed seed polluted grain would have been 6 to 10 cents per bushel or 10 to 15 cents per acre. How much, Mr. Pharis asks, will it cost each and every year to kill the weeds planted with seed grain? Consider the costs in reduced yields and grades, chemical sprays and other weed control operations.

A few cents spent on seed means dollars gained at harvest time.

Whoopers May Survive

Good sportsmanship and good public relations are paying off for the whooping crane.

Shyest of wilderness birds, few species of wildlife—and not too many humans—have the whooper's genius for sharing the headlines with atomic scientists and foreign ministers. And none, perhaps, has done more than this surviving handful of beautiful birds to bring home to North Americans how dangerously close a rare species of wildlife can come to the borderline of extinction.

The Canadian Wildlife Service received word last week that 28 cranes—ten more than were known to have taken off from Wood Buffalo National Park in the Northwest Territories this fall—had reached the Arkanas National Wildlife Refuge in Texas, safety. Two sets of twins were among the cranes this year, the first time since 1939-1940 that a double set of twins has survived the hazardous 3,000-mile journey. Last year no youngsters survived it at all. The total number of birds to reach Texas this year is seven more than in 1954.

Behind this modest progress lies a summer of painstaking observation by air and ground in parts of the 17,300 square miles of wilderness that comprise Canada's most northern National Park. W. A. Fuller, Canadian Wildlife Service mammalogist, permanently stationed at Fort Smith, had a watching brief over the cranes added to his many other duties. He kept the nesting grounds under periodic observation from the air for a period spanning 116 days.

A party composed of representatives of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the National Audubon Society spent a month conducting ground surveys. R. P. Allen, who has spent years searching for the breeding grounds of the elusive cranes and is the world's leading authority on them, was a member of the party.

"A crazy quilt pattern," Fuller described the dense forest, lake and marsh that is the nursery of the cranes. From the air it looks like one vast maze, wild and lacking landmarks. An observer's nightmare. But the summer's work paid off. It ended a ten-year search for the precise location of the nesting grounds of the whooping crane.

The adult whooper with its white body, black wing tips, scarlet face patch and 7-ft. wing spread is a magnificent bird in flight and distinctive in appearance. But the rusty-brown young have no such protection and have easily fallen prey to the sportsman's rifle. Young whoopers can, and have, been mistaken for other species such as the sandhill crane, one reason why their mortality rate has been high.

Same Deal For Farmers

(Fairview Post)

We've got so used to bonusing our manufacturers by applying tariffs to the cost of outside goods and thus allowing our Canadian factories to price their goods higher than would be possible otherwise, that we simply consider it a matter of course that cars, radios, refrigerators, and practically everything in the manufactured lines that we purchase in Canada cost us more than they cost in the country of their manufacture. Our living costs are pushed up very substantially by this manufacturer-bonusing scheme, and every day we pay our share of this extra cost.

This is in direct opposition to the "law" of supply and demand, and as we further investigate the manufacturing and industrial business we find that the "law" is very seldom if ever allowed to operate.

With the fact that in practically every other walk of life the law of supply and demand is abrogated or modified or dispensed with altogether, we find it rather difficult to understand why it should be made to apply to agriculture. Even if it were possible to tailor agricultural production to the market it would be discriminatory to make farmers the only group without actual cash protection—and with the extreme difficulty in regulating supply due to weather and other conditions, and market uncertainty, it becomes almost unthinkable that we should expect farmers to prosper without some of the stabilizing influences that have been necessary for healthy industrial development.

I am not surprised that the Arabs will fight to regain their freedom. How much did France pay for Morocco, and how much in natural resources have the French taken in the past 30 years? There is the answer to why France refuses to let Morocco have its own government.

VETERAN

HARD-HEARTED COP

Thank you, Edmonton City Police! I visited your city recently and you gave me a ticket for driving 30 m.p.h. along Jasper Avenue in what you call a "school zone". There are no adequate signs here to warn motorists it's a school zone and no schools in sight. At the same time as I was caught in your net, scores of Edmonton cars went whizzing by at 30 m.p.h. or better. If you drive less than 30 on Jasper Avenue, you're inviting trouble of a different sort. Someone is sure to bash you in from behind, as at any slower speed you're a menace to speeding city traffic. You did a nice job, officer, and I hope you and your whole darn police force are proud of your brave action.

COUNTRY DRIVER

CUTE POEM

Here's a catchy verse that was given me the other day:
There's a wee little cottage,
With room for four,
Just "you two" and "your two",
What could you wish more?
I like it—and believe others do too.

ICEBERG BLOCKADES?

If U.S. Air Force fliers are afraid to use dry ice on hurricanes, why don't they have the Navy tow some icebergs down from the North Pole, put them in a hurricane's path and see what happens? My guess is that when a hurricane hits that cold barrier it will fade away.

AD APPRECIATION

Just a short note to thank you for the well-worded advertisement you ran for me recently. I know we were puzzled about how the advertisement should be worded, but you did a swell job on it. Thanks a lot!

SUGGESTS SOME HELP

A recent Voice letter from a man who demanded that all alcoholic cases be thrown out of hospitals, to relieve over-crowding, intrigues me. Where would he have these drunks, who are truly sick people, land? None of them wants to be drunk. Instead of throwing these unfortunate people down, why not try to introduce them to Alcoholics Anonymous? That might help them—or don't you believe that a drunk is even a human being?

KITCHENWARE POISONING?

Nearly 150 people were poisoned at a church dinner in Brantford, Ont. They blamed it on the turkeys, when I'm sure it was just common, ordinary, aluminum poisoning. We could duplicate this incident any time, anywhere, 150 persons could be found, willing to try the experiment. On second thought, perhaps we had better try it on 150 cats, since it is just such incidents I am trying to prevent.

WANTS FREE DRUGS

Why don't they issue free drugs to addicts? Then they'll cut out all the stealing, thieving, prostitution, arrests and jail sentences that go with the illegal drug traffic. Why hasn't someone thought of this before?

AVERAGE GUY

WANTS 3 WIVES

Every man should have at least three wives. He needs one to stay home and raise the children, and another to work with him on the farm or in his business. A third would come in very handy when the other two are too tired to go out and make whoopee after the day's work is done. We need a change in our marriage laws to provide each man with three legal wives.

MALE VOICER

NO SPACE TRIPS FOR HIM

All this talk about exploring the stars is nothing but drivel and bunk. The nearest star, excluding our sun, is about 25 trillion miles away. If your space ship travelled 10,000 m.p.h. without cessation, it would take over 2,850,000 years to reach that nearest star. If you want to travel, grab the CNR to Athabasca.

Premier Steel Mills Requires 44,000 Tons Of Scrap Metal Annually

EDMONTON — Alberta's only steel mill and the only one between Vancouver and Winnipeg, is now producing steel for the first time in the province's history.

The $2,000,000 addition to Edmonton's booming industrial colony is the only merchant bar mill in the history of the Canadian steel industry, starting from scratch, to be transferred from the drawing board to reality with every modern concept of production.

"Our mill is laid out in the 'flow-line' plan for speed of production," explained Gerald Heffernan, Premier's managing director.

"The scrap steel goes in one end of the mill, flows through a production line to emerge at the end as finished steel.

Premier's steel is then sold to jobbers and fabricators.

One of the most modern features of the mill is the melting furnace which was designed in Italy and built in England.

"Because they lack coal deposits, the Italians are far ahead of American and British steelmen in the use of electrically-operated furnaces," said Heffernan.

This new steel industry will help clean up Alberta's countryside as dealers scour the province for scrap in the next few years. Every suitable piece of scrap steel will be collected to feed the hungry furnaces.

The U.S. acts to bar the "leak" of surplus goods to Reds.

President Eisenhower recently stressed that the United States merely wanted "to live in peace with all the world, to trade with them, to commune with them, to learn their cultures as they may learn ours".

Gideons Give First Million Testaments

An historic milestone was reached by The Gideons International in Canada last month as the 1,000,000th copy of their special Youth Testament edition was presented to fifth grade pupil, John Weiker, in a public ceremony at Kitchener, Ontario. The presentation was made by the National President of the Association, Mr. Roy S. Spaetzel.

This particular phase of the Gideon ministry was commenced in October, 1946, and has steadily grown in scope and importance. The program now involves an annual distribution of 150,000 New Testaments and is carried on in public schools in all of Canada's ten provinces, the Yukon and Northwest Territories.

Gideon Testaments, including the Psalms and Proverbs, familiar hymns and the National Anthem, are offered 5th grade pupils yearly. The Gideons also place Bibles in hotel guest rooms, motels, auto courts, hospitals, penal institutions, school and military establishments.

The Gideons International in Canada was organized nearly 50 years ago and the head office is located at 146 Jarvis St., Toronto, Ont.

MODELLING OF NEW TEXTILE FIBRE FASHIONS AT MACDONALD HOTEL

EDMONTON — A "Terylene" fashion show and stage presentation, touring major Canadian cities to introduce the new textile fibre to retailers, was seen by about 450 representatives from Edmonton department stores in the Macdonald Hotel.

"The public is somewhat confused about the qualities of the various man-made fibres. This show is part of our campaign to provide local sales people with accurate information," said R. B. Winsor, general manager of the division of Canadian Industries (1954) Limited which manufactures "Terylene" in Canada.

"If sales people in the store are well-informed, they can tell their customers exactly what a fabric will do or will not do. The buying public wants this information and in respect to "Terylene", at least, we intend that they will have it," he commented.

By the time this fall's tour is completed, more than 5,000 sales personnel from Montreal to Vancouver will have learned about the properties of this fibre and will have seen fabrics now available and a preview of what can be expected in the near future.

"Terylene" polyester fibre, a product of chemical research, was discovered in England during World War 2 and a $22,000,000 plant to manufacture it in Canada was officially opened near Kingston, Ont., on Sept. 28.

Fabrics presented in the show ranged from sheers, brocades and crepes of 100 per cent "Terylene" to wrinkle-resistant suitings for men and women of 50 per cent "Terylene" blended with 50 per cent wool. Evening gowns, afternoon dresses, suits, and sportswear were all by Canadian manufacturers and couturiers.

Fashion commentator was Miss Doris Clark of the C. I. L. textile fibres division in Montreal. The properties of the new textile fibres were demonstrated in an original stage show employing the talents of some of Canada's leading television entertainers. Included in the cast were dancers Zina Cheevers and Bill Dyer, comedian Doug Romaine and singer Bruce Webb, all of Toronto.

Immigration To Continue

OTTAWA (BUP)—Immigration officials have confirmed that immigrants with labor skills needed in Canada would be admitted during the winter months.

LAC LA BICHE Alberta

The first word of a change in Canada's immigration policies was made in London, where the migration council, a private agency, said this country would seek immigrants during the winter months for the first time since the Second World War. The council said 102 categories of workers would be welcomed at Canadian immigration offices.

Because of opposition from labor organizations, Canadian immigration offices abroad have been virtually closed during the winter months when unemployment is at its highest in Canada.

A department spokesman in Ottawa indicated the government had received approval of labor organizations for the new policy.

In the first nine months of this year immigration fell to its lowest point since 1950. Some 86,000 new arrivals were registered during the period compared with 127,000 in the same period last year. A survey found a sharp drop in the percentage of high school students enrolled in mathematics and science.

HOW... DOES A STRONG FINANCIAL SERVICE Sell Groceries?

The rural grocer is a little like the general practitioner — he cannot narrow his business down to specialization. His customers rely on him to provide them with a wide range of necessities.

To do this, he needs the services of a strong financial institution, such as the Provincial Treasury Branches. Drafts, loans, current accounts, money orders, safety deposit boxes are just some of the many conveniences of our organization. By working in close partnership and co-operation with the local Provincial Treasury Branch, the rural grocer can better serve his customers, which will naturally increase his profits.

Today as never before, rural families are making more and SPENDING MORE. For the grocer, it is a healthy market with plenty of buying power.

The Provincial Treasury Branches are ready and able to help the rural merchants of Alberta service their customers efficiently and profitably.

During the televising of Canadian football, you hear voices of sports announcers, but rarely see their faces. Here they are on newsprint: Dave Price (upper left) who handles color commentary, works with play-by-play commentator Steve Douglas (lower left); the second team working on the Big Four telecasts is Byng Whitteker (upper centre) and Ward Cornell (lower centre). Premier Says Canucks Timid Premier Manning disclosed that United States companies are gaining increasing control of Alberta's expanding oil industry and pinned part of the blame on the over-cautiousness of Canadian investors.

The provincial Social Credit leader told the Gordon economic commission Alberta has been criticized for opening doors to American money, but the province turned to the U.S. in the early days of the western oil boom simply because eastern Canadian firms didn't appear interested.

"The U.S. firms were willing to take the risk while eastern Canadian firms were slow in believing in our potential," the premier said. "If we had waited for Canadian investment to get our start, we would be far behind where we now are."

But he indicated there is still time for Canadians to get aboard. Alberta had only "scratched the surface" in harnessing her resources. The future was rich with opportunity.

CCF Wants Advance Cash —Not Loans

EDMONTON (BUP) — The national leader of the CCF party, M. J. Coldwell, voiced opposition to the federal policy of guaranteeing bank loans in meeting the present grain emergency, while in Edmonton on a western speaking tour.

Commenting on the grain situation, he said at an interview, the proper system would be to give the farmers 75 per cent of the initial price on farm stored wheat.

Mr. Coldwell said the present wheat glut is due largely to the federal government's wheat policies and farmers should not have to carry the loans.

Mr. Coldwell blamed the federal government for failing to increase proper marketing arrangements with possible customers.

He said he is opposed to any settlement of differences and dispute. Mr. Coldwell stated he hoped there would be a parliamentary delegation, as well as a delegation of business and professional men from Canada visit Russia next year and a similar delegation of Russian business government and professional men will visit Canada.

"We need to rearrange our tariffs so that our overseas customers can earn dollars to buy goods," said the CCF leader.

Speaking on the international situation, Mr. Coldwell said:

"International tension has decreased because of the universal fear of new weapons. There is a good possibility over a period of time not only of co-existence but of universal peace among the great powers."

Queried about possible trade with Russia, he said: "We always advocated trade with all nations, as long as we were not supplying strategic materials."

Trade relations and good-will visits such as the one of Mr. Pearson, and of the Russian farmers to Canada, I believe will advance the prospects of the peaceful
